THE LATE PIERRE SOULE. - The New Orleans Picayune has the following:

"On the close of the war Mr. Soule found himself entirely broken in fortune, and forced to return to the bar. Family afflictions preyed upon his irritable temperament, already seriously affected by his imprisonment and other events, his health gave way, and at last his mighty intellect tottered on its throne, and before long sunk into imbecility, through softening of the brain; and this extraordinary man, whose eloquent tones had thrilled popular: assemblages with high emotion, whose arguments at the bar had convinced jurors and judges, whose speeches had been listened to with profound attention by grave senators, and had moved whole communities, whose pen had written diplomatic papers on subjects which interested the civilized world, died in utter forgetfulness of his triumphs in life, and without capacity to comprehend what had been passing for two years in that world in which he had shone so conspicuously for many years. This was indeed a melancholy fate, and it has elicited the deepest sympathies of our community.

In person Mr. Soule was remarkably handsome. His head was a study for artists, being massive, and well formed, with a broad, expansive forehead, firm set mouth and chin, the nose slightly aquiline, and the arch of the eye gracefully curved, from beneath which shone a pair of dark eyes, full of intelligence and fire. His voice was wonderfully magnetic in its influence on hearers. His elecution was polished, his gestures graceful and always appropriate.

'His manners in social life were gentle and winning, but his nature was proud, aspiring and impatient, and any opposition to his wishes quickly roused its sleeping force and vehemence. He was a very positive man in everything, though he rarely abandoned the persuasive in manner. Taken all in all. l'ierre Soule will be remembered in this community as one of the most brilliant, learned, intellectual, and gifted men who have lived and died here during the past fifty years.

Too Late for the Train. - The most difficult thing in the world for a woman to do is to than an intimation that she may possibly miss the train. Our friend, Braytogle, gives us an instance of this. Mr. Bray was supposed to take the ten o'clock train on the Bee Line to visit some relatives in an interior town. Having suffered on previous ing suffered on previous occasions for injudicious suggestions, Bray thought that, for once, he would let things take their natural course. So he sipped his coffee and ate his eggs on toast, while Madame curled and powdered, and danced attendance on the looking glass, and tied bark on the back of her head. Then Bray sat by the stove for an hour and read the morning paper, while the Madame still continued to get ready. At last, just as he had reached the final paragraph of reading matter, and was beginning on the advertisements, Madame ticd her bonnet strings under her chin, took one long lingering, loving look at the image reflected in the glass, and sweetly announced: "Well, my dear, I'm ready."

"Ready for what?" asked Bray, in well affeeted astonishment. "To go to the depot, to be sure," said Mrs. Braylogle, tartly.

"Oh?" said Bray, "I'd forgotten. Well, Madame," continued he, looking at his watch, "that train has been gone thirteen minutes. Just keep on your things, and you'll be ready for the train to morrow morning.'

We draw a veil over what followed. We are assured, however, that next morning Mrs. B. was ready an hour ahead of time.

A FUNERAL SERMON. - The following is from a sermon on the death of a young man of indifferent position in the social circles of B-New Hampshire, who came to an early decease by a vigorous but absurdly unequal contest with a party of the Otard family:

"I hev been requested, not to say impertuned, toe deliver a funeral discourse on this occasion, and I hev reluctantly consented toe do so. I never heard any good of the deceased yit; and if the friends hev made up their minds that I am about to begin sech a course now, they are very much mistaken. I estimate, in fact, that this young man now a layin' before you was about the wast man ever permitted, in the onscrutable ways of the divine peppusses, toe locate in this vicinity. He was one who might say allers fell when he was tempted; and he certingly appeared to me toe seek, rather than to avoid, occasions for such temp tation. "Why, my feller Christians, he kep' hosses and run 'em; he kep' cocks and fit 'em; and as toe wimmin, let his widder (who I see a settin' in a front pew) testify." Here the widow arose, as was the custom when the family of the deceased was alluded to, and deeming it a complimentary remark, courtesied to the preacher). "In short, after a diligent inquiry intoe the pertickerlers of his kerrikter and conduct while he has resided in this village, I her com toe the conclusion that about the only good thing that kin be said of him at all is that he was an active member of the engine company, and occasionally good at fires.

"The "pall-bearers will now proceed to bear out the corpse.'

MENTALLY.—The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded. Loss of Memory. Confusion of Ideas, Depression of Spirits, Evil Englectings. Forebodings, Averson to Society, Self Distrust, Love of Solitude, Timidity, &c., are some of the evils produced: Thousands of persor of all ages can now judge what is the cause of their declining health losing their vigor, becoming weak, pale, ner-vous and emaciated, having a singular appearance about the eyes, Cough, and Symptoms of Consumption. YOUNG MEN, Who have injured themselves by a co-tain practice, indulged in, a habit fre-quently learned from evil companions, or at school, the effects of which are nightly felt, even when asleep, and, if not cured, renders marriage impossible, and destroys both mind and body, should apply immediately.

What a pity that a young man, the hope of his country, the pride of his parents, should be snatched from all prespects and enjoyments of life by the consequence of deviating from the path of nature, and indulging in a certain se cret habit. Such persons must, before contem-

MARRIAGE. reflect that a sound mind and body are the most necessary requisites to promote connubial happiness. Indeed, without these the journey through life becomes a weary pilgrimage, the prospect hourly darkens to the view, the mind becomes shadowed with despair and filled with the melancholy reflection that the happiness of another becomes blighted with your own. DISEASES OF IMPRUDENCE. When the misguided and imprudent votary of pleasure finds that he has imbibed the seeds of this painful disease it too often happens that an ill-timed sense of shame or dread of discovery deters him from applying to those, will from education and respectability, can alon befriend him, delaying till the constitutional symptoms of this horrid disease make their apsymptoms of this horrid disease make their appearance, such as ulcorated sore throat, diseased nose, nocturnal pains in the head and limbs. dimness of sight, deafness, nodes on the shin bones and arms, blotches on the head, face and extremities, progressing with frightful rapidity till at last the palate of the mouth or the control of the nose fall in, and the victim of this awful disease becomes a horrid object of commissers. disease becomes a horrid object of commissera-tion, till death puts a period to his dreadful suf-ferings, by sending him to "that Undiscovered

Country from whome Diverseller returns thou It is a MELANCHOLY FACT that thou sands fall victims to this terrible disease, owing to the unskilfulness of ignorant pretenders, who, by the use of that DEADLY POISON, MY R-GURY, ruin the constitution and make the residue of life misorable. DR. JOHNSON.
